INTRODUCTION

The Skills Development Act, 97 of 1998, as amended defines a Skills Development Provider (SDP) as a provider of an occupational learning programme.

SDPs (hereafter referred to as providers) are at the base of the education and training system in that they are the organisations that actually engage in teaching and learning and deal directly with learners, the “clients” whom the education and training system is meant to serve. It is, therefore, of critical importance that providers develop quality management systems (QMS), and that they receive the necessary support in order to operate within the National Qualifications Framework (NQF).

The Quality Council for Trades and Occupations (QCTO) has published the “Policy on accreditation of skills development providers” which providers should satisfy for the purpose of accreditation.

Assessment Quality Partners (AQPs) are accredited by the QCTO to monitor and audit the provision, assessment and achievement of part or whole qualifications. SDPs will be required to present their learning programmes to the AQP for evaluation.

AQPs may audit providers to collect evidence about one, or a combination, of the following reasons:

- The systems put in place by a provider to assure the quality of its services
- Learning processes, provider’s competence and resources
- Assessment of learning by providers of learning opportunities
- What has been learned, achieved, or is already known, through assessing the learner
- The degree to which access, mobility, progression and redress have been enhanced

This document serves as a guideline to be used during a visit to a provider in terms of Section 34 of the Pharmacy Act, 53 of 1974, as amended, or by the South African Pharmacy Council (SAPC) in its capacity as an AQP.

This document incorporates the policies and procedures for the approval and accreditation of providers by the SAPC-AQP. This document deals particularly with learning programmes leading to a certificate of qualification for pharmacy support personnel. It also incorporates guidelines for the development of training programmes by providers, as well as the assessment of learners.

The minimum requirements for the approval of providers of learning programmes for pharmacy support personnel are based on the “Policy on accreditation of skills development providers” as published by the QCTO.

The provider is required to perform a self-assessment based on the standards contained in the document. Where possible, supportive documentation should be attached to substantiate the findings of the provider.

The evaluator appointed by the SAPC-AQP will evaluate the provider and the learning programmes against the same criteria during a visit to the provider.

Following the visit, a report will be prepared by the SAPC-AQP, which includes the input provided by the provider following the self-assessment, and the findings of the moderator of the SAPC-AQP. Recommendations, where necessary, will also be included.

This document applies to the rendering of the following learning programmes:

1. Pharmacist's Assistant (Basic): Part qualification
2. Pharmacist's Assistant (Post-Basic): Part qualification
3. Pharmacy Technician: Qualification

The sections and references that deal with pharmacy technician are implementable subject to the publication of amendments to the relevant regulations.

Instructions for completion of the instrument

This form should be submitted when an application is being made to the South African Pharmacy Council (SAPC) for the accreditation/re-accreditation of an SDP.

Responses should be succinct but must address explicitly matters drawn to the applicant's attention by the SAPC at earlier stages of the accreditation process. Responses should include proposals about actions that will be taken to address any weaknesses or deficiencies it has identified. A method of self-assessment may include a risk analysis against each standard.

Some information may lend itself to being compiled in quantitative and/or tabulated form; as such, recommended tables are provided in appendices for this purpose. Where reference has been made to these tables (or other tables) and other documents, please reference these in the relevant response section for each standard.
